14. The passage lays emphasis on which of the following themes?

- (A) The abysmally throwaway prices offered for food commodities.
- (B) The worldwide acute shortage of food commodities.
- (C) Promoting the use of bio-fuel for automobiles.

15. In what way are bio-fuels responsible for the increasing cost of food?

- (A) It is a policy mandated to use bio-fuel in place of petroleum products especially in developing countries.
- (B) Certain food commodities are being used for manufacturing alternative fuels.
- (C) The low cost of bio-fuels has created fluctuation in prices of other agricultural commodities.

16. According to the passage, which of the following factors are suggested as reasons for the recent volatility in food prices?

- (A) Increased investment activity in commodity markets
- (B) Weakening of the U.S. dollar
- (C) Higher agricultural productivity across the world

17. According to the passage, why are investors increasingly turning to commodity markets?

- (A) Low returns in treasury securities
- (B) Turbulence in financial markets
- (C) High subsidies given to agricultural investors

- 18. Which of the following statements can be inferred from the passage?
- (A) Bio-fuel policies may create competition between food and fuel needs.
  - (B) Public policy may sometimes prioritize financial stability over food stability.
  - (C) Agricultural production currently exceeds global demand.
- 19. Which of the following statements is true according to the passage?
- (A) Poor households spend a higher proportion of their income on food.
  - (B) Rising energy costs are the sole cause of increasing food prices.
  - (C) Women in poor households are often the most affected by food shortages.

- 20. Which of the following best explains the phrase “policy induced new reality” mentioned in the passage?
- 21. According to the passage, which of the following factors make holding inventories attractive?
- (A) Easy liquidity in financial markets
  - (B) Low interest rates
  - (C) Increased agricultural subsidies
- 22. What does the passage suggest about global agricultural policies?
- 23. Which of the following statements can be concluded from the passage?
- (A) Both demand and supply factors influence food prices.
  - (B) Bio-fuel policies have no relation to food prices.
  - (C) Global financial markets can influence commodity prices.

Anyone who shops knows the cost of food is on the rise. Our grocery bills rise because the prices of key staple are on an upward trend that shows no sign of abating. When food suddenly costs more, those who can least afford it get hit hardest. On average, Canadians spend less than ten percent of their income on food. However, people living in poverty spend 50 percent and the poorest as much as 75 percent of their income on food. When prices mushroom, these people must do without, and it is women who most frequently eat last and least. The current global food situation is very serious and hence, we need to understand the reasons for such a dramatic increase in food prices in a short period. It is argued that increases in energy costs are resulting in cost push inflation but the contribution of energy costs to overall costs in agriculture may not explain the huge increase in food prices.

Related to the current elevated energy prices, there has been a diversion of corn and edible oils to bio-fuels, which is significantly influenced by policy mandates. Very clearly this diversion to bio-fuels is a policy induced new reality, which coincided with price escalation in precisely those products and hence, is noteworthy. The financialization of commodity trade and current extraordinary conditions in global financial markets could have influenced the spurt in prices. The recent reductions in interest rates in the U.S. and the injection of liquidity have resulted in investors seeking new avenues such as commodity markets, in view of the turbulence in financial markets and the low returns in treasuries. The relatively easy liquidity and low interest rates, by themselves, make holding of inventories attractive and thus induce greater volatility in commodity markets. The weakening of the U.S. dollar is also advanced as a reason for the recent volatility in commodity markets, including food items. It is evident that this phenomenon is now also coinciding with the across the board rise in food prices.

In brief, while there are demand and supply side pressures on food items, there is considerable merit in the argument that the recent extraordinary increases in food prices are closely linked to public policy responses to high energy costs in advanced economies, and the turbulence in financial markets and financial institutions. It is said that the impact of such policy induced diversion of food to bio-fuels is significant at this juncture and reflects a preference to fill the fuel tanks of automobiles rather than fill the empty stomachs of people. Similarly, it is sometimes held that the weight accorded to financial stability in public policy may now be at the expense of stability in real sector – especially of sensitive commodities like food. At the same time, there is a general consensus that public policy in regard to food in many economies around the world has not provided adequate incentive to farmers to increase the supply of food and other agricultural products to comfortably match the growing demand over the medium term.
